

A Birthday Reminder

A birthday is a kind reminder
Of the many years that are gone
And the more that are still to come
The need to forget the bad years
And make the new ones real fun
To embrace the shining moon
And celebrate the rising sun

A birthday is a beautiful occasion
To be surrounded by loving friends
Laugh, dance, play and hug everyone
Relax, and let the soul be rejuvenated
Forget past mistakes you've done
And commit to making good of days to come

A birthday is a gentle reminder
Of the many sleepless nights you spent alone
Negotiating deals that could never be done
Thinking of days passed by unconscious
Missing the singing birds and the setting of the sun
Worrying about life's ups and downs
That may never come

A birthday is a sobering reminder
That true happiness and satisfaction
Are mere shadows always on the run
Riding on the shoulders of a friend
Your heart loves dearly
And feels he is the one

In whose eyes you see the moon
In whose heart you touch the sun
In whose arms you live your dreams
Experience passionate love
And feel that the end of happiness
Will never, ever come
