

A picture

Every picture is not an image of a person or something only; it is also a space and a place to store good and bad, happy and sad memories, it is an honest mirror that reflects what happened in the past or how things were at the time when the picture was taken. Therefore, we need to make sure that all pictures we take are authentic and truthful; and when possible, most beautiful and cheerful as well. It is important that personal pictures convey happiness rather than sadness, and reflect good times rather than bad times.
