

The Toolbox

The toolbox is full
It has many convenient tools
For the rich and powerful to chose
How to manage our economies
So they can win, and we lose

They love to borrow and spend
While a debt crisis largely looms
To bailout failing banks and corporations
Without giving us the right to chose
So they win, as we lose

They build tanks and planes
And deadly missiles that cruise
Waste our resources fighting senseless wars
While our economy suffers the blues
They always win, as we lose

They export our jobs to whomever they chose
And Import our shorts, socks and shoes
Leaving millions languish in poverty
Fly their corporate jets and cruise
As the homeless under broken bridges snooze

Economists seem to have no clues
That the world has changed so much

It invalidated their conventional tools

But why should they worry

They make money, as we lose

We have lost our jobs and homes

And have nothing more to lose

Let us have a drink and some fun

We know they grin as they win

And see us lose

Thinking we are the world's humblest fools

But together

We empower each other

Create a global power

Change the world forever

Win, and never lose
